Trillion bells installed bell tower this week

Carillon bells are being installed in the Centennial bell tower this week. The tower will be the first part of this project to Max Wilson, assistant director.

The tower will be three ways to bells. "First, they can be played with a clavier, a system of keys by wire directly to the clapper, playing the bells can vary the of the bells, by the strength he uses to strike the keys. Second, they can be played by a system of magnetic tapes, connected to the electronic playing system. And third, a piano style keyboard can be used."

Dr. Lorin F. Wheelwright, director of the Centennial, said the bells will chime the hour by playing the last strains of Mormon hymn, "Come, Come, Ye Saints."

Wilson said John Longhurst, a faculty member, will be the official carillonneur. He said Longhurst has been trained to play the bells.

Wilson said workers from the Verdine Company would be working on the bell system for about a month.

Pres. Spencer W. Kimball is scheduled to dedicate the bell tower during the Founders Day celebration, Oct. 10, Wilson said.

Plane hits wire, kills 2

The crash occurred about 7:30 a.m. and was spotted by Tom Woodhouse, manager of the Spanish Fork Flying Service, as he was coming in for a landing at the Spanish Fork airport.

Sheriff Holley, Utah County Sheriff's Office, said that strong canyon winds blowing across the northern end of the runway may have kept the plane from gaining altitude to clear the power lines.

"It appeared the pilot tried to get under the power lines, but the left wing clipped the pole and sheared it off," said Sheriff Holley.

Sheriff Holley said the plane had taken off from Provo airport and stopped at Spanish Fork for refueling. The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating the crash site.

The majority of the branches in BYU's 12 Stakes will be on a somewhat combined schedule for services on Aug. 17 and 24.

Services in most stakes are being combined because of the low number of students staying in Provo between the end of summer term and the beginning of fall semester.

BYU Education Week to be held August 19-22

By ART ATKINSON
Universe Staff Writer

Education Week, to be held on BYU campus from Aug. 19 to 22, will host over 10,000 people, said Mrs. Leora Thurman, supervisor of the Campus Education Week Program.

These persons will be coming from all over the United States and from many foreign countries, explained Mrs. Thurman.

Education Week, now in its 54th year, is "one of the oldest adult education efforts in the world," said Mrs. Thurman.

Its purpose is "to motivate people to continue their learning and expose those who come to many new ideas constantly coming forth in different areas of learning."

The program is open to all persons 14 years of age and above, including BYU students. Pre-registration ends Friday at 5 p.m. Those interested in attending Education Week can register at the Jolley House at 700 East 300 North in Provo, according to Mrs. Thurman.

The pre-registration cost is $7 for a single person and $12 for couples. She added that post-registration is $8 for a single person or $3 a day.

There is no special post-registration price for couples.

Senior citizens and children of those registered can register for an additional $6, said Mrs. Thurman.

Classes will be taught by over 100 persons—BYU faculty members, former mission presidents, local residents, health center nurses, etc., according to Mrs. Thurman.

Course instruction will begin at 7 a.m. and end at 7:30 p.m. each day with breaks for lunch and dinner, she said. Each course will last one hour and those enrolled can choose from over 462 different courses offered.

Subjects taught will range from gourmet cooking, springboard diving and public speaking to meeting emotional challenges.

Special classes on customs and cultures of other lands and eliminating self-defeating behavior are offered as "enrichment materials and ideas for the 1975-76 Relief Society Lessons," according to the Education Week brochure.

One of the highlights of the week will be a special centennial assembly Tuesday at 10:45 a.m. in the Marriott Center, where BYU Pres. Dallin Oaks will speak. His topic will be "One Hundred Years—Past and Future," according to the Education Week brochure. This assembly is open to the public.

According to the brochure, Education Week is being sponsored on the BYU campus by the following LDS stakes: American Fork, Orem, Orem West, Payson, Provo, Provo North and Spanish Fork.

Last year over 84 other education weeks lasting from two to three days each were held in the U.S. and Canada, reaching over 67,000 persons.

Graduating students may pick up their caps and gowns at the Alumni House today between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. and Friday between 7 and 8:30 a.m.

Virginia Riggs, Alumni House administrative assistant, said students who failed to order a cap and gown may rent one of the extras which were ordered by the Alumni House for that purpose. The regular fee plus $1 late fee will be charged.

Mrs. Riggs added that punch and cookies will be served to those picking up caps and gowns.

ll housing forecast: situation tight

RICHARD SHEFFIELD
Universe Staff Writer

Housing situation is very tight, but available.

Martin, head of BYU Housing, said tight situations his department been able to house everybody.

"It is a terrible," said Bill married law student from Ogden, "there's not a thing, and for there is plenty."

Housing tight couple said that housing was "hard" if that there was some that was live or out-of-town.

Single girls commented that they to settle for something farther campus than they wanted, or to pay more than they felt was assembling a branch directory he noticed that everything was full.

Cancellations open

He added that if people know someone in a complex, they should arrange to be notified when there are openings because of cancellations.

"I was lucky because I knocked on a door the day of an opening," said Martin. "If students can arrange for some kind of housing for the first two weeks of the school year, they can usually find openings during that time."

"Many students leave school after the first two weeks because they can't hack school, or can't find jobs."

By calling apartment complexes, the University found that most were filled. One manager said however that most complexes would have some openings because of cancellations.

"Some have waiting lists." Often there are openings during the last week before school.

Check listings

Barton encouraged students to check the "most up-to-date listings" in the BYU Housing Office on the ground-level floor of the Administration Building. The department is doing many things to help the problem.

Available facilities listed

We are screening managers and owners by telephone to check for cancellations. Utah County is being surveyed to try to find all available facilities. Both condominiums and contractors recently building are being contacted," explained Barton.

Barton said that Helaman Halls, Heritage Halls and Desert Towers are all filled. There are waiting lists however in case of cancellations.

"Helaman Halls has the shortest list, and Heritage Halls would be very difficult to get in," he said.

Waiting list

Asked about married student housing, Barton replied that there is a 12-14 month wait for Wymount Terrace and Wyview Park. There is variance in wait according to the number of bedrooms required.

One firm that is finishing two new complexes said most of the apartments will be ready by Aug. 25, according to Heather Forsyth, head of renting for the firm. The rest of the apartments will be ready by Sept. 10.

"These complexes are on south university avenue and on the right side on the way up the Orem hill."

Demand great

"There is more demand than can be filled," declared Eugene Metter, head of the Utah County Landlords Association. "In talking with people I've noticed the situation is very, very tight."

"Students will have to go to American Fork, Payson, Lehi and even Salt Lake to find housing," continued Metter. "It will be especially difficult for the Utah Technical College students who haven't arranged for housing, because their school starts Sept. 23."

City school rules for sign-up given

By H. SCOTT GUPTILL
Universe Staff Writer

BYU students planning to preregister their children in the area after this deadline can contact the school district office," said Mrs. Reid.

Preregistration is taking place at Joaquin Elementary School, 550 N. 600 East, for kindergarten and grade-school pupils.

"The preregistration will enable the teachers to become better acquainted with the children and their parents," according to Ida Reid, Provo City School District secretary.

The teachers will be able to contact the parents, set up interviews to discuss the school year and form a better working relationship between the parent and teacher.

Medical forms needed

"The registration is on a walk-in basis. Those who move into the area after this deadline can contact the school district office," said Mrs. Reid.

"New students to the district or kindergarten need updated medical and dental charts. Record of immunization is required for all students," Mrs. Reid said. Kindergarten children should have a birth certificate or some form of I.D. telling the age of the student. Children who will be five on or before Oct. 31 can be enrolled in school.

Pupils living in the college housing will be bused to either Joaquin or Rock Canyon elementary depending on the number of pupils from the two housing parks.

Forms available

"Students with school-age children not living in BYU housing should go to the elementary school in their area and register," said Reid. Wymount Terrace and Y-View Park housing offices have forms that parents need to fill out and return to the housing office. These forms will be returned to the parents with the school assignment of the child.

"The purpose of the assignment sheets is an attempt to have equal educational opportunities for all the elementary school children of Provo and prevent overcrowding in any one school in the area," according to Boyd McAfee, director of Elementary Education.

"Fifty-five children from BYU housing attended the public schools last year and about the same number is expected this year," according to Reid.

Bus schedules for the pupils will be sent to the parents before the beginning of school, which is Aug. 26. Questions concerning children should be directed to Boyd McAfee, Director of Elementary Education, Provo City Schools, 280 W. 940 North between the hours of 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

TV to air Y survival experience

Eighty BYU Survival students have participated in the filming of a special feature to be shown locally on KUTV-Channel 2 next week.

According to Doug Nelson, instructor of youth leadership and coordinator of survival activities, the BYU portion of the feature will be shown on the 6 p.m. news of KUTV on Aug. 19, 20 and 21.

Filmed in the Escalante area of Southern Utah in June, the BYU portion is part of a week-long series of survival features on KUTV to be shown Aug. 18-23, said Nelson. Features of other survival programs will be shown Monday, Friday and Saturday, he said.

The BYU students who participated, said Nelson, were part of a 28-day survival class, Youth Leadership 480. The students were divided into two groups of 40, who, according to Nelson, were filmed demonstrating primitive survival skills, rappelling and fire-making.

According to Nelson, the news team spent a day in the desert area of Escalante and a day in the Boulder Mountain area filming student activities. The KUTV team also interviewed students and faculty who participated in the survival experience. "We felt privileged to be one of the programs chosen for the feature," said Nelson. "We were impressed with the cooperation of KUTV," he added.

Stress experiment blows hole in floor

The "fracture energy in tensile testing" proved to be more than was expected during an experiment by a civil engineering student.

The result was a four-inch hole in the solid cement ceiling of 208 ESTB 30 feet above the experiment and a 16-inch damaged area on the lab floor above.

No one was injured during the explosion which occurred July 30. The experiment was to measure the "effects of high strain rates and fracture energy in tensile testing," according to Reese Goodwin, acting departmental chairman.

In lay terms, they were testing the stress on nuts and bolts. Gunpowder was set off inside a contraption with a cap on top which strikes the nut bolted on above.

The area was protected by a series of sandbags as a protective measure but the initial experiment displaced the sandbags, officials said.

"It blew cement and floor tile all around the room up here," said Gene Cook, who works in the lab above the experiment.

The church leader explained that temples are distinct from the thousands of church chapels or meetinghouses, where regular worship services are conducted and to which the public is invited.

Temple tours given Before the temple is dedicated, however, it will be open for public tours for several weeks. Tours of the new Washington, D.C. Temple attracted more than 758,000 visitors in September and October, 1974.

President Kimball said the sacred work performed in the temples is an unselfish labor of love designed to extend the saving principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ to all men and women, both living and dead.

Working drawings will be completed in early 1976 and construction, expected to take from 18 months to two years, should begin in the first half of 1976.

The temple will have one basement level and four levels above ground. The ground floor will be 76 feet wide and 130 feet long and the upper levels 76 feet wide and 88 feet long. The main portion will rise 65 feet above ground and the tower, accented by a narrow stained glass window, will reach a height of 184 feet. There will be elevator and stairway towers on two sides of the temple.

White stone face Designed to meet rigid Tokyo building codes for earthquake protection, the temple will be of reinforced concrete and steel, faced with fine white stone, still to be selected.

The temple grounds, although necessarily restricted in size, will be landscaped in the delicate Japanese tradition. The stone wall surrounding the temple will be broken by recessed sections of wrought iron fencing to permit passersby to view the gardens.

A decisive factor in the choice of the temple site, Fetzter said, was its easy access to Tokyo's mass transit system. The Hiroo station on the Hibiyu subway line, a part of Tokyo's subway system, is but a five-minute walk from the temple.

Ivan J. Barrett seems to make a point directed at Ben Lewis, executive vice pres., during Tuesday's devotional.

Prophet Joseph Smith main topic at devotional

By BUTCH HOWINGTON
Universe Staff Writer

How to serve the Lord as the prophet Joseph Smith taught was one of the topics Ivan J. Barrett spoke on during Tuesday's devotional.

"If we are not drawing near to the Lord in principle we are drawing near to the devil," quoted Barrett. Barrett said that one of the most important things in the life of the prophet Joseph Smith was the friendship he had with others.

"He loved the majority of the church members so well that he wanted to be resurrected with them," said Barrett.

He explained how the prophet knew that wherever the Saints would be, there would be a good society.

The prophet taught that love is one of the chief characteristics of Diety and ought to be magnified by those who aspire to be sons of God.

According to Barrett, the prophet Joseph loved the saints but he was not blind to their misgivings or their shortcomings.

He explained that the prophet was not too concerned about a man's character if that man were his friend.

According to Barrett, Joseph Smith believed that friendship was one of the strongest powers that existed and that love truly begat love.

"Therefore, let us pour forth love, show forth our kindness unto all mankind and the Lord will reward us with everlasting increase," Barrett said.

Barrett explained that Joseph Smith liked more the man who would cause a blue streak and treat his fellow man fairly than he would the smooth talking hypocrite.

$4.5 million asked of Bronfman family

Kidnappers of whiskey heir Samuel Bronfman reportedly are demanding a $4.5 million ransom and have warned his family that he is buried with a 10-day supply of air and water.

Spokesmen for the 21-year-old Bronfman's family have refused to discuss the amount of ransom demanded or other details of a letter received in the mail Monday. But they said Tuesday they had complied with its instruction.

Sources close to the investigation were quoted as saying the ransom figure was $4.5 million, believed to be the highest in U.S. history.

Chief and military confer in Portugal

LISBON — Security chief Gen. Otelo Saraiva de Carvalho met today with military commanders following two nights of attacks on Communist political offices in northern Portugal.

A power struggle within the armed forces continued to divide the pro-Communist officers and people against establishing a Communist dictatorship.

Anti-Communist violence that claimed four lives and injured scores in the north appeared to have let up today.

There were unconfirmed reports that Carvalho, one of three generals on the ruling junta, was preparing his own program for the next steps in Portugal's 15-month-old revolution.

Official proposes tighter FBI rules

MONTREAL — U.S. Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi has proposed tight controls on techniques the FBI may use in domestic surveillance, the length of its investigations, and the time it may hold certain information.

Levi said Wednesday he was seeking to balance the interest of individual liberties, abused by the FBI in the past by "sometimes outrageous" activities, with the legitimate needs of domestic intelligence inquiry.

He spoke at the American Bar Association's annual meeting in Montreal.

Army experiment shocks daughter

NEW YORK — The daughter of an unwitting victim of the Army's experiments with hallucinogenic drugs says she has been told that he died of an LSD injection administered as medication.

But, she said, Tuesday's announcement of the reason for her father's death was a shock. In a press release, the Army attributed the death of tennis professional Harold Blauer in 1953 not to his treatment as a state mental hospital patient, but to the Army's experiment.

"I'm collapsed through the whole experience," said the widowed daughter, Elizabeth Barrett, 35, of Manhattan. She added that three Army officers gave her the news in person.

PROVO — A former prisoner of the North Vietnamese who spent six years in military prison camps says he would like to teach business education at a college after retiring from the Air Force.

Lt. Col. Jay R. Jensen will receive his masters degree in business education at BYU during commencement exercises here Friday.

A Chandler attorney got his plane out of prison, with a crane. Wayne Lewis accidentally landed his single-engine plane inside a work area at the Arizona State Prison Monday, thinking he was landing on the prison airstrip about a half mile away.

He retrieved the craft from behind a 12-foot chain link fence surrounding the prison work area with a crane Tuesday because there wasn't room for a safe take-off.

Prison Warden Harold Cardwell said Monday he would like to have charges filed against Lewis, who caused a general alarm at the prison when the plane touched down.

Soviet deal denied for exiled author

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger says he urged the Soviet Union to let Alexander Solzhenitsyn leave the country a month before his exile last year. But he denies there was any U.S.-Russia deal that prevented President Ford from seeing the author when he first came to this country.

"There was no deal of any kind as to how Solzhenitsyn was to be treated in the West," an angered Kissinger said Tuesday in a telephone call to reporters accompanying Ford on his vacation in Vail.

Speaking from Washington, he denied a report quoting a White House aide as saying the President did not meet with Solzhenitsyn last month because of agreements with Russia.

Former prominent official suspended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard G. Kleindienst, former attorney general, was suspended Monday from practicing law in Washington for a month by the District of Columbia Court of Appeals.

The suspension, voted for by a four-member majority of the seven-member panel, was for "direct and repeated misrepresentations" concerning White House involvement in the ITT antitrust case.

The panel rejected a recommendation by the D.C. bar's disciplinary board for a one-year suspension.

The court ordered the one-month suspension to begin Aug. 15 and called Kleindienst "a man of high professional stature, with correspondingly high obligations, who was caught up in a highly charged political atmosphere."

Water week goes on

By H. SCOTT GUPILL
Universe Staff Writer

The new aerial platform fire truck was the dominant feature at the Provo City Building for the "Better Water for People Week Family Water Carnival."

The Water Carnival continues this week with displays inside the City Building and the larger equipment on Center Street.

The new Provo City ambulance was on display with Willis Woodward, Provo City paramedic, answering questions from the public.

An open house to explain the workings of the waste-water treatment plant is scheduled today from 3 p.m. to 6 p.m. The plant is located in south Provo, east of the golf course at 1501 S. 300 East.

A unique vehicle called the Jet Machine Truck was on display. The purpose of this truck is to clear rocks, grease, leaves and other debris from sewer lines.

Provo City Commissioners Wayne Hillier and E. Odell Miner made a big splash at the carnival as they each took their turn in the dunking chair booth.

"Better water for Provo," were the first wet words spouted by Commissioner Hillier as he emerged from the dunking tank.

Commissioner Miner was less prepared as city worker Frank Roberts, approaching as a friend, pushed the peg to release the dunking stool holding Miner. After the initial plunge, the commissioners found drier locations.

"Our family enjoyed the displays and movies of the fires and how to prepare ourselves," said John Ellison, Provo.

The other movie was "In a Fire, Seconds Count," which showed one family preparing a fire exit plan and then using it.

"If something is unplanned, you don't have to think of what to do," said Robert Farrer, fire inspector of the Provo City Fire Department.

Workers from the Water and Wastewater Department were on hand to answer questions concerning the displays throughout the lobby.

The public got involved in the activities by taking part in the balloon catapult. Frank Roberts of the Water and Wastewater Department was the target for the balloons.

Prof given local party leadership

For those people who plan to remain on campus during the summer interim break, most buildings and services will remain open for normal summer hours.

In the Wilkinson Center, which opens at 6 a.m. and closes at 11 p.m. week days and midnight, Friday and Saturday, the Hobby and Games Centers will both open at noon week days and 10 a.m. Saturdays. The Credit Union's hours will remain from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. week days.

The Library's hours are being shortened, a spokesman said. On Wednesday it will open at 8 a.m. and close at 5 p.m. Saturdays it will remain closed all day.

The issue rooms in the Richards P.E. building are going to stay open from 6 a.m.

Family occasion: BYU graduation

A life-long dream of Mrs. Helen W. Clah, a widowed Navajo Indian, will be fulfilled at BYU's summer commencement on Friday when she sees two of her three children receive their diplomas. Another daughter graduated from BYU in April.

In fact, it will be a family affair because Mrs. Clah will also have a son-in-law and a daughter-in-law graduate. The four graduates are her eldest daughter, Stella Clah, son Herbert Clah, Jr., a daughter-in-law Sandy Kerchee Clah; and a son-in-law Jimmy Benally. Jimmy's wife, Anna Clah Benally, graduated in April.

The four will be among 27 Indian students who will graduate from BYU next week, 22 of whom will receive bachelor degrees, while five will receive associate degrees. This brings the total graduating this year from BYU to 58.

Largest enrollment
BYU's Indian enrollment of more than 500 students from 76 tribes and blends coming from across the United States, Canada, and Latin America, is the largest in the nation for a university, according to John Maestas, chairman of BYU's Indian Education Department.

A total of 303 Indian students, including the August graduates, have earned degrees from BYU. These include 12 masters' degrees, 173 bachelor's degrees, and 118 associate degrees.

Maestas reported that 20 per cent of BYU's Indian students start as freshmen graduate as compared with the national average for Indian students of four per cent. The national completion average for all college and university students is 33 per cent.

After graduation, the Clah's will move to Shiprock, N.M., to work with fellow Navajos on the reservation and perform in their singing group they've named "Taa Nihii."

Lamanite Generation
Stella, a licensed cosmetologist in New Mexico, will receive a B.S. degree in applied sociology. A former member of the "Lamanite Generation" on tour of the U.S. last spring, she recently illustrated textbooks for Independent School District No. 22 in New Mexico for English as a second language. She graduated from Kirtland (N.M.) Central High School.

Herb, president of the "Lamanite Generation" on its nationwide tour last spring, will receive a B.S. degree in sociology and has already worked one year as a Navajo policeman in Shiprock. A graduate of Shiprock High School, Herb served a Southwest Indian Mission for the LDS Church before returning to BYU to complete his studies. He and Sandy last summer and they have one child.

Sandy, a Comanche/Sac & Fox from Des Moines, Ia., will receive a B.S. degree in university studies in three areas: social sciences, youth leadership, and French. A graduate of Southeast Polk Junior-Senior High, she performed with the "Lamanite Generation" across the USA last spring as Miss Indian BYU.

Overseas performances
Both she and Herb performed for American troops in Germany with a miniature version of the "Lamanite Generation" in its first overseas performances.

Jimmy, a native of Shiprock who served a Southwest Indian Mission, will receive a B.S. degree in recreation. He was active in the sports program while at Shiprock High School playing football, basketball, and baseball.

Women's Council plans meet

The BYU Women's Council will hold an open house from 11 a.m. - 1 p.m. Aug. 27, immediately after the faculty workshop.

Mrs. William Strong, publicity chairman for the Women's Council, said that all female BYU employees and all spouses of BYU employees are invited.

"This is because all of these people are automatically members this year and there are no dues anymore," said Mrs. Strong.

The meeting will be held in E400 HFAC, with Mrs. Dallin Oaks and members of the Women's Council leadership forming a reception line.

Mrs. Strong said that programs for the coming year will be distributed at the Faculty Workshop or university conference and at the open house.

"Mrs. David Lyon will make a Centennial Cake for the open house," added Mrs. Strong.

General to speak at ceremony

Brig. Gen. Wilfrid K. G. Smith, deputy chief of staff for the Army Reserve Officers' Training Corps who is commonly called "Mr. Army ROTC," will be the featured speaker at commissioning ceremonies today at BYU.

A total of 15 Army ROTC cadets from BYU will receive their second lieutenant bars at the commissioning ceremonies, along with one from the BYU Air Force ROTC unit. Ceremonies will be held at 3:15 p.m. in 321 ELWC. The public is invited to attend.

The summer graduates will bring the total commissioned through the Army ROTC program at BYU since it was started to a total of 546, with 86 receiving commissions this academic year.

This makes BYU the third largest source of officers for the U.S. Army, behind the U.S. Military Academy at West Point and Texas A&M University, according to Col. Bartley E. Day, professor of military science at BYU.

The Air Force ROTC unit has commissioned 68 this year and a total of 1255 officers since it began in 1951.

Gen. Smith is the senior officer in the Army having the ROTC responsibility. With headquarters at Fort Monroe, Va., he manages the Army ROTC programs conducted at more than 290 colleges and universities and almost 650 high schools nationwide.

The college-level program produces more than 74 per cent of the new second lieutenants who enter the Army each year. He also is in charge of programs at 400 smaller colleges that are without ROTC units or cross-enrolled.

Gen. Smith served two tours in Vietnam before assuming his present assignment in May 1973. A native of Burnaby, British Columbia, Canada, he began his service career when he enlisted in the U.S. Army in 1944. During his early career, he served as an infantry platoon leader and company commander in assignments in the United States and in Europe following World War II.

When war broke out in Korea in 1950, Gen. Smith volunteered for duty there, serving both on Okinawa and in Korea during the next three years. He was wounded at Heartbreak Ridge after five months of combat.

After overseas tours in Germany and the Middle East, he attended the Command and General Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Foreign students learn home skills

The international students in the home storage class are learning and practicing their new skills in canning and drying foods.

And now most of the women in the class taught by the Extension Service have their husbands participating in the storage project, according to Leonel Maia, a graduate assistant working in the International Student Office.

He said the husbands are working in the campus hobby shop building fruit dryers. They are being instructed in the dryer construction by other students who have some experience in using the machinery and building the dryers, he explained.

Maia said the men are quite successful in their building project and anticipate using this knowledge in their native countries. Food drying is a practical and economic way to preserve food in most South American countries, Maia added.

Until the dryers are completed, the women are practicing food dehydration in their ovens at home. Mrs. Ida Harmon, the class instructor, said this is a safe and effective way to dry foods.

Students living on campus during that period will have to arrange for food in other places or in the cafeterias in the Wilkinson Center, explained Barton.

On-campus housing spots are all contracted for fall, but waiting lists are being made for any possible cancellations at Helaman Halls, Heritage Halls and Deseret Towers.

Students who have reservations should have paid a $25 deposit, added Barton.

European Osmond fans tour U.S. and Y campus

By DAN STOUT
Universe Staff Writer

What is red and silver, has 12 wheels and sings, "Just like a Yoo-yo?"

The answer is three buses full of members of the European Osmond Fan Club pulling into the Harris Fine Arts Center parking lot.

Last Friday, 130 teenage girls arrived on the BYU campus for a tour of what some of them called the "Osmonds' University."

The stop at BYU was part of a tour that includes Las Vegas, Los Angeles, Allentown, Pa., Philadelphia, and New York City. The trip originated in England on July 28.

According to Maureen Street, president of the European Osmond Fan Club, the girls paid between $850 and $950 for the tour. "We've had a splendid time, these are great kids."

The Fan Club president said most of the girls were 17 and over and 30 per cent of them were LDS. "These girls are only a fraction of the 130,000 members of the Osmond Fan Club throughout Europe. All really admire the way the Osmonds are family-oriented. I hope they get a rest from the crowds here in Provo."

The group spent Thursday in Salt Lake City where some was also interested in seeing the Osmonds on their U.S. tour and their home."

Another tour member, Cathy Reynolds, from Scunthorpe, Humber, England, said, "I really admire the way the Osmonds are family-oriented. I hope they get a rest from the crowds here in Provo."

The group spent Thursday in Salt Lake City where some of the girls were interviewed on KSL. Miriam Weyt, from Folkestone, Suffolk, England, commented on the Salt Lake area: "Salt Lake City is an interesting city. The mountains make it beautiful."

After the BYU tour, the group flew to Allentown, Pa., where the girls saw the Osmond Brothers perform on tour.

Phone rate asked

Bell rate proposal benefits customers nose use of the telephone is minimal, officials say.

Mountain Bell Provo district Manager, said Mountain Bell's new proposal would raise rates for all residents who make direct calls anywhere in Utah County, and for those not making long distance calls.

Interim offer provides $4 in intra-county calls only $1.20, said Hymas.

Completed in May of this year showing all intra-county calls amounted to less than reduction will be billed to calls under $4 in additional calls billed at the regular toll rate.

Proposed to increase the monthly telephone bill, except those in Springville, regardless of call long distance within the county. Under the order, said Hymas, rates would be the same for telephone users in Utah County, and the county customers would be subsidizing the Mountain Bell's new offer is an interim proposal benefitting low income, low-income customers, but would have the high users paying for additional calls. This would be on the basis of the number of calls made, the duration of the call, the distance called and the time of day the call is made, according to Hymas.

"The new rate structure would particularly benefit people on fixed incomes, students, or any telephone customer whose use of the telephone is minimal," said Hymas.

The present rate structure has everyone paying a flat rate for a particular service regardless of the amount of telephone usage, he added.

He said that to continue raising monthly rates for local service, regardless of usage, would soon price telephone service out of the budget of low-income people.

Mountain Bell has a petition asking for an early hearing date on its interim rate reduction proposal.

The petition also asks the commission to discontinue implementation of the present order which would result in a rate increase for all Utah County telephone customers.

Y students' September 15 wind up donations at $250,000 for Provo clock tower

Brigham Young University students have raised $250,000 toward their $1 million goal to help pay for the new addition to the BYU Library, according to Stephen L. Barrett, assistant director of Alumni Relations.

The drive is being supervised by the 100-member Student Development Association, with Barrett as its adviser. The goal was set in 1971 and the students hope to reach it by August 1976.

In addition to the specific library project, the SDA also has taken on the responsibility of educating students concerning BYU's development needs and encouraging student involvement in the University's fund-raising activities.

Some of the projects the SDA has helped promote in raising money for the library are the telefund, bike-a-thon, book buy-back, project talent, concerts, dances, auctions and many others.

Under project talent, certain students are given money and asked to put that money to work in their own personal projects.

According to Barrett, the telefund is the largest single project conducted in student fund-raising. Last year, 1,500 students telephoned 20,000 students and 18,000 of those contacted responded with pledges totaling over $60,000. So far, more than $40,000 has been collected as a direct result of the telefund.

Barrett reported that a large source of income has been from the national contributions. Students have solicited the support of business and professional men from all over the United States and Canada.

The Women's Division of the Provo Chamber of Commerce plans to have a clock tower completed on the Provo City complex by Sept. 15.

Dr. Jennie J. Poulson, chairman of the clock committee, said the project, which began in 1973, was set in the final stages Aug. 7, when the main contract was signed. The contract between the City of Provo and the I.T. Verdin Company, will provide the clock movement and five bells to be used as chimes.

The 30-foot clock tower will be built on the northeast corner of the city complex in downtown Provo. The clock itself will be suspended from four vertical steel poles. Under the four-sided clock will be hung the five bells. They will range in size to provide a variation in tone.

The clock will have Westminster chimes that ring on the hour, quarter-hour, half-hour, and three-quarter-hour.

Dr. Poulson said that in 1973, fund raising projects were begun for the project. Since that time, a fashion show, an auction of articles donated by local merchants, a bake sale, a hand concert and a dance have been held to provide money for the project.

The City of Provo included this project with those proposed to the Utah American Revolutionary Bicentennial Committee for funding. Dr. Poulson said the clock tower was the first of the proposed projects to be approved by the Committee.

The acceptance resulted in a grant for $4,513. This amount will be more than trebled by the donations of the City of Provo and the fund raising projects of the Women's Division.

Dr. Poulson said her committee wished to express thanks to all those involved in the planning and the actual construction of the clock tower. She said the businesses involved have gone out of their way to be of assistance.

The cast of "The Forge and the Fire" rehearse for Education Week performances.

Tom Bay, right, views scene from his memory in the play "Papa Married a Mormon."

Two plays to run next week

Two Mormon plays, "The Forge and the Fire" and "Papa Married a Mormon" will be shown as part of Education Week at BYU, Aug. 19-22 in the Harris Fine Arts Center.

"The Forge and the Fire," a series of Mormon vignettes will play in the Nelke Experimental Theatre.

The show directed by Max Golightly, associate professor in the Department of Theater and Cinematic Arts. All performances beginning at 8 p.m.

True story

The material for the present script of "The Forge and the Fire" emerged from the Mormon Festival of Arts vignette presentation in 1974. All of the experiences are true and came from various members of that cast, and other stories from interested people. Because of the tremendous response received "The Forge and the Fire" was originated.

One of the vignettes tells of an officer in Germany, played by Joseph Batzel, who is tempted to be immoral. Struggling with the forces of evil, he eventually triumphs.

Other vignettes include a musical spoof on homely girls, a special musical number featuring Rita Riddle, Dave Bybee and the entire company singing the lyrics of an old folk song.

Reed Turner, a graduate student in theatre, majoring in technical theatre is the designer for the production of the set and the lights. Ed Macdonald, a senior is the designer for the costumes.

Successful play

After a successful run at the Promised Valley Playhouse in Salt Lake City, and at BYU for the Mormon Festival of Arts, "Papa Married a Mormon" will open again this month for a final run for BYU's Education Week.

The show directed by Dr. Charles Metten will run in the de Jong Concert Hall beginning at 8 p.m. every night.

Tickets can be purchased at the Theatre ticket office at the prices of $1 for education week patrons and $2 general admission.

"Papa Married a Mormon" is a new play by Dr. Charles Whitman based on the novel by John D. Fitzgerald. Dr. Charles Metten is the director of the large cast.

Grows up

The action takes place in the attic of the Fitzgerald Home and in the memories of John D. Fitzgerald the youngest child who returns to the old home as an adult. John D. is played by Tom Bay, a graduate in directing from Marysville, Utah.

The roles of Mama and Papa are played by Vickie Julian a graduate student in theatre from Spanish Fork, Utah and Wes Wright, senior majoring in music composition from Clearfield, Utah. Other members of the cast include Polly Sorensen, Becky McPhie, Dan Leatham and Rick Hatch.

Gambling on a used car is very much like playing a slot machine... without a bit of know-how, many players get stuck with a lemon instead of the jackpot.

The next "Consumer Survival Kit" program, tonight at 8:00 p.m. on KBYU-Channel 11, gives Host Larry Lewman suggests ways to determine the age and use of a used car, and lists sources for obtaining a car other than a used car dealer.

development of man progressing towards the second coming of Christ.

Roustit indicates that Beethoven's music was the height of great music when viewed in terms of the history of music.

Roustit points out further along in his work that the atonal music being produced during our time shows the confusion that the Bible prophesied would come in the last days before the coming of Christ.

The work is very technical in its approach and often times difficult to read. However, once the book is read, the reader is bound to feel that some very profound things have been said.

Students who are interested in music and especially music composition would find this work especially interesting and perhaps even revealing in terms of the compositional techniques of today and what these techniques say about our society.

personal office." Human nature always effects their decisions, but even so, the state of the country is always affected by the president.

"Ford can't come to the White House with a cold without the stock market dropping five points," he said. The president is at the core of this civilization.

"There is no other person who directly effects more lives than the United States president," Sides remarked. He brought to mind General Washington's stability, Thomas Jefferson's foresight and curiosity, and Lincoln's great compassion while in the White House.

"If we as journalists can reveal more of a candidate's character, a better service to the public can be served," Sides remarked.

Presidents discussed Sides then talked about the past five U.S. presidents: Eisenhower, Kennedy, Johnson, Nixon and Ford.

"Each one leaves his special mark on the presidency and the nation," he said. Eisenhower didn't know much about politics and was rather bored by it. He just sat back and let Lyndon Johnson, then the Senate majority leader, run the country from Capital Hill, Sides said. Yet, Eisenhower was believable and appeared trustworthy to the public.

"Trust is the cement which holds a country together," Sides commented. "Eisenhower didn't confide much but when he did, it appeared generally straight."

Kennedy Kennedy on the other hand was quite divorced from the American working man. "Because of his money and aristocratic background there was a wall between him and the people," said Sides. This

Repairs on gym floors completed
 Efforts to beat the coming tide of sports enthusiastic students of fall semester are being made by the construction department of the BYU Physical Plant and the custodial service. The smaller number of students and decreased use of P.E. facilities during the summer term have provided the opportunity for repair work. According to Francis Murdoch, BYU building inspector, 80 per cent of the gym floors in the Richards Building have been refinished. Resurfacing of the indoor tennis courts has been completed with a special coating to provide the desired effect on the speed of tennis balls. Murdoch said, two-thirds of the outdoor tennis courts have also been resurfaced. Before the beginning of the next semester the walls of the paddleball courts will have been repainted. Murdoch explained that perhaps not all the paddleball courts could be finished by fall.

was breeched, however, by Kennedy's great charisma and interest in peace.

The next president, Lyndon Johnson, was a different man altogether. "He seemed to think of himself as a king," said Sides, mentioning some of the humorous and not-so-humorous examples of Johnson's regal mentality.

He would hand out to "deserving" people plastic busts of himself and lie with tremendous candor, Sides remarked. "He would dominate conversations with his sheer size."

Nixon "vain" Nixon's administration was marked by great vanity and arrogance which culminated into what was probably the most monstrous political crime in our history, said Sides.

"I can't figure Nixon out, and shall leave that up to psycho-historians," the journalist said. "From the pinnacle of SAIT and Peking he seemed to slide steeply down into the depths of watergate."

Ford "boy scout" Sides had general praise for the now incumbent president. "Ford is a middle-America man, probably the only practicing Boy Scout in Washington."

No death plot, Kissinger says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger Tuesday denied the Nixon or Ford administrations ever plotted to assassinate any foreign officials.

The denial came as Kissinger met reporters after testifying for more than two hours in closed session with the Senate intelligence committee.

"There was no policy to assassinate any foreign official or leader," he said.

Smith kin gather in reunion

Approximately 500 descendants of Joseph Smith Sr. met in Salt Lake City, this month for a family reunion.

According to Buddy Youngren, executive secretary of the reunion committee, Salt Lake hosted the third reunion held since 1972. Youngren indicated that descendants from as far east as Florida and west as California came together for the reunion.

Youngren indicated that the first reunion was held in 1972 at Nauvoo, Ill., the second reunion took place in 1973 at Independence, Mo. Youngren indicated that no reunion was held in 1974.

According to Youngren many activities were planned for the family. The activities included attending the rehearsal of the Tabernacle Choir, meetings featuring stories about Smiths who came west, luncheons, films and tours of the Salt Lake area.

Among those in attendance, according to Youngren, was Lynn E. Smith, a patriarch in the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; the grand-daughter of Israel Smith, past president of the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; and Winter Smith, son of the Prophet Joseph's brother Samuel.

Youngren indicated that most of the participants in the reunion stayed with relatives in the Salt Lake area or nearby hotels.

During business conducted during the reunion Youngren indicated it had been decided to have a reunion every two years. The next reunion will possibly be held in Kirtland, Ohio.

"Before and after" of house at 187 N. 400 West owned by Craig M. Call, president of Historic Utah, Inc., which renovated the home.

By Provo citizens

Old homes renovated

By FRED D. LEWIS
Universe Staff Writer

Many of Provo's historic buildings are being saved from destruction by the original ideas and efforts of a few interested individuals.

Many historic landmarks are being or have been renovated for use by commercial tenants.

Leading the crusade to preserve the architectural heritage of Utah is Craig M. Call, president of Historic Utah, Inc. It is a corporation dedicated to preserving the pioneer heritage through renovation of homes and commercial buildings of that period.

Call said he returned to BYU to attend the law school three years ago and purchased an old home that has since become known as the Eggersten House. It took eight months to renovate the home. It has been used as a restaurant, but is presently serving as Call's office and residence.

According to Call, Provo's many old homes have been trying to get a certain house condemned and demolished for years. Call took this as his personal challenge. The result has been a structure artfully restored to its original beauty.

While working with the Utah Heritage Foundation and the Utah Historical Society, Call proposed a bill to the last state legislature which was subsequently passed into law. This law states that no historic site listed on the State or Federal Historic Register can ever be torn down or destroyed.

Call said that it has never before been possible to control property after the owner's lifetime.

Call said his organization "wants to let people know what is possible in preservation of historic sites, what has been done and what each individual can do to help." The pamphlet on Provo historic buildings can be obtained at the Eggersten House.

Call is presently renovating two other homes in Provo and has plans for another renovation next year. One home now being remodeled was built in the 1870s. Call says he plans for the structure to house students when renovation is completed.

The other home being restored is near completion. Call said the home, located at 187 N. 400 West, is one of Provo's finest gothic revival residences.

The elegant lace porch, high arched windows and lace-trimmed gables make this house unique. Call says it will be used for commercial purposes.

Directly across the street from it is another old home that has been restored and converted into business offices.

Another home presently being converted into a business enterprise is at 383 W. 100 South. It was originally built in 1895, and has recently been purchased and is being remodeled by Douglas K. Hardy, owner of an Orem restaurant.

Ron Sumner, manager and co-owner of a men's clothing store, says his company decided on the old home that houses its business because of the high overhead elsewhere in the area. Sumner says the old home was in such good shape when they bought it that there was no need to make any expensive major repairs on its basic structure. The house, located at 39 W. 200 North, adds unique atmosphere and distinction to the town, Sumner said.

The Knight-Mangum mansion, located at 381 E. Street, was built in 1908. It was restored by Milo Baughman and is also now used for commercial offices. Baughman's design studio is housed in a portion of the unique structure.

Guy Hill said the home was renovated because the past architectural designs had much more personality than anything being built today. He added that restoring an old home can be more economical than building a new one if the materials used in the house are selected well.

Hill summarized the feeling of most of those interested in preserving historic architecture when he said: "We have to find some way of keeping people from destroying. Will our children look upon a subdivision house as an example of good architecture? I think not. We need to save what good examples we have left."

Phone hook up costs reduced

Students can save $16 in telephone charges by following policies established by the phone company. Under a new policy students will be charged $22 to install a phone in an apartment if the previous phone has been disconnected. Students can avoid this charge if they will agree to a transfer of responsibility, the telephone company needs permission of both the present occupant of the apartment and the new person moving in. Under this policy, the phone number would remain the same. The telephone company requires both parties to the transaction to agree to the transfer and will permission given by the student to any service. The telephone company places a restriction in most still be completed at the time the transfer disconnect date requested by the previous occupant has passed. The transfer of responsibility will cost the student instead of the $22 charge to install a new phone. ASBYU Pres. Bob Henne issued this reminder to students along with Clifford Finch, unit Mountain Bell telephone.

Fifteen students will receive commissions in the Army Thursday along with one student in the Air Force in ceremonies at which Brig. Gen. Wilfrid K. G. Smith, deputy chief of staff for the Army ROTC, will speak.

Among the 2,181 graduates Friday, a total of 81 will receive doctoral degrees, 368 master's degrees, 1,537 bachelor's degrees, and 195 two-year associate degrees.

These degrees bring the 1974-75 school year total to 5,666 which is just under last year's record total of 5,797. This will be the second consecutive year that more than 2,000 students have graduated from BYU in summer ceremonies.

In the graduation ceremonies, a total of 1,224 men and 957 women will graduate representing 47 states and the District of Columbia, as well as 30 foreign countries.

An excursion into the early, struggling years of BYU will be presented in exhibit form beginning this weekend in a special Wilkinson Center exhibit: "The Maeser Years."

Presented by BYU student government in cooperation with the university's Centennial Center, the presentation will highlight Karl G. Maeser, first principal of Brigham Young Academy beginning in 1876. Maeser's memorabilia never before placed on public display will be featured in the Wilkinson gallery.

A graphic depiction of Maeser and his contribution to BYU has never been attempted on this scale, and the exhibit is a fitting beginning to a series of student-sponsored presentations on various periods of BYU's history that will run throughout the Centennial year," said Mike Hutchings, ASBYU Culture vice-president of the student organization.

The exhibit will be open for the president's reception for summer graduates tonight and will remain open through Centennial Homecoming in October, Hutchings said. The general public is invited to see the exhibit without charge.

On display will be Maeser's ornate oakwood podium, his coat and cane, a six-foot oil painting loaned by Maeser School, his desk, and a number of original documents secured by special permission from the University's Archives. A second section of the exhibit will be a reproduction of a typical student room of the period, complete with wood stove, hand-branded rug, and furniture of the 1870s.

A special graphic profile of the "typical Maeser student" highlighting research work recently completed at the sociology studies Dennis Hansen and Craig Fowler, will depict the physical dimensions, opportunities, of students of contrast to students of Abraham Finch. The students were two contemporaries, John Olsen and Jennie of the class.

An entire exhibit will feature of Abraham Finch, saving the Young Academy certain financial

Two health plans offered to students

A new student health insurance plan is being offered to students by the Health Center plan.

The plan is provided by the Blue-Cross, Blue-Plan and covers hospital expenses, which the Health Center plan does not, said Ralph Brown, a member Health Services Committee.

Registration packets mailed to all new students had enclosed with them pamphlets describing the plan. The Blue-Cross, Blue-Plan plan provides coverage of emergency hospitalization, while the Health Center plan is basically for students who only visit Center.

Center said that pamphlets can also be obtained from the Smoot Administration Building information weren't received in the mail. Payments should be made to the Health Center plan at registration Aug. 29 and the Health Center plan.

The difference between the two plans is the Health Center plan is basically a service, but the Blue-Plan is an insurance program involving hospital and doctor expenses, a spokesman from Center said.
